

Scenic city in focus

Ipswich and the Scenic Rim will feature on a new Channel Seven TV series in January.

The region will be the focus of the first episode of 150 Must Do Things in Queensland on January 11.

Highlights include visits to local wineries and a hot air balloon ride aboard Floating Images with chief pilot Graeme Day.

“After a very wet month of November we finally got to fly Channel Seven across Ipswich and the Scenic Rim on December 3,” Mr Day said.

“It was another perfect morning flight with Ipswich city in the centre surrounded by our beautiful, green Scenic Rim countryside, Flinders Peak, the D’Aguilar and Great Diving Range mountains.”

A veteran of the Ipswich tourism industry, Mr Day said the Scenic Rim was a Queensland icon.

“It is a diverse and beautiful region set against a spectacular natural backdrop.”

Hosted by Dean Miller and Sofie Formica, 150 Must Do Things in Queensland premieres on January 11 next year.

The new series is being developed as part of Queensland’s 150th birthday celebrations.

For more, visit www.150mustdos.com.au.

Floating Images chief pilot Graeme Day (right) gets ready for lift off alongside Channel Seven’s Dean Miller, Sofie Formica and the 150 Must Do Things in Queensland film crew.